

The Architecture of Institutional Fracture: An Exhaustive Investigative Dossier into the Political Failures and Post-Governance Trajectories of Boris Johnson and Mary Elizabeth Truss

1. Executive Synthesis and Macro-Strategic Context

The governance continuum of the United Kingdom traversing the administrations of Prime Minister Boris Johnson (2019–2022) and Prime Minister Mary Elizabeth (Liz) Truss (September–October 2022) represents a profound epoch of institutional destabilisation, ethical attrition, and severe macroeconomic volatility. While historically, successive administrations operating within the same political party mandate maintain a degree of institutional continuity and administrative stability, a forensic, retrospective analysis of this specific transitional period reveals a systemic, accelerated dismantling of established democratic conventions, financial prudence, and civil service neutrality.

The political methodologies employed by both leaders, though stylistically divergent, shared a foundational reliance on the centralisation of executive power, the marginalisation of independent regulatory or advisory bodies, and the cultivation of adversarial, populist narratives designed to deflect accountability for acute administrative malpractice. Under Boris Johnson, the state apparatus was subjected to extreme operational strain. His tenure was characterised by the subversion of statutory transparency, the cultivation of a deeply toxic and unaccountable "shadow government" operated by Special Advisers (SpAds), and the deployment of a legally compromised, multi-billion-pound "VIP Lane" for pandemic procurement.¹ This era culminated in the historic findings of the House of Commons Privileges Committee, which concluded that Johnson deliberately and repeatedly misled the legislature regarding the "Partygate" scandal, representing an unprecedented contempt of Parliament by a sitting Prime Minister.⁵

Conversely, the brief, 49-day tenure of Liz Truss was defined not by prolonged ethical degradation, but by sudden, catastrophic ideological capture. Empowered by a highly capitalised network of opaque donors and libertarian think tanks situated around 55 Tufton Street, Truss executed a rapid, ideological purge of the Treasury's senior civil service leadership.⁸ This deliberate eradication of institutional memory and economic "orthodoxy" cleared the operational pathway for the September 2022 "mini-budget"—an aggressively un-costed fiscal event that circumvented the independent forecasting of the Office for Budget Responsibility (OBR). This evasion triggered an immediate, severe sovereign debt crisis, precipitating a near-collapse of the UK pension sector and necessitating a £65 billion emergency intervention by the Bank of England.¹¹

Furthermore, this dossier maps the highly sophisticated architecture of reputational laundering, corporate monetisation, and narrative deflection currently deployed by both former leaders. Transitioning from public service into the private sector, both Johnson and Truss have successfully leveraged their political notoriety to extract vast international speaking fees, establish opaque corporate vehicles, and curate transatlantic populist networks.¹⁴ By synthesizing historical electoral data, public inquiry testimonies, parliamentary disclosures, and macroeconomic analyses, this report provides a comprehensive framework for understanding the systemic vulnerabilities actively exploited by these administrations, and the enduring consequences for the United Kingdom's democratic resilience and economic stability.

2. Research Thread 1: The Digital Architecture of the 2019 Insurgency

To comprehend the administrative failures of the Johnson era, one must first analyse the digital and financial architecture that secured his initial democratic mandate. The 2019 UK General Election witnessed the Conservative Party deploying a highly sophisticated, data-driven campaign that radically altered the parameters of traditional British political communication.¹⁸ This approach treated the conventional mechanisms of state transparency not as democratic necessities, but as communicative obstacles to be subverted.

2.1 "Strategic Lying" and Algorithmic Exploitation

The 2019 Conservative digital strategy was orchestrated by a cadre of elite, interconnected consultancies, most notably Fleetwood Strategy and the New Zealand-based digital agency Topham Guerin.¹⁸ The defining characteristic of this digital operation was the deliberate deployment of "strategic lying" and low-fidelity, high-arousal content generation.¹⁹ The campaign operated on the sophisticated understanding that platform algorithms (specifically Facebook and Google) reward engagement over empirical accuracy. By disseminating provocative or fundamentally inaccurate claims—often packaged as "boomer memes" or heavily edited video clips—the campaign forced traditional media outlets into a reactive posture.¹⁹ When journalists and opposing politicians moved to correct the record, they inadvertently amplified the core Conservative messaging, allowing Johnson's "Get Brexit Done" narrative to dominate the news cycle.²⁰ This normalisation of digital obfuscation, coupled with the absolute prioritisation of narrative dominance over empirical truth, established the psychological and operational baseline for how the Johnson administration would subsequently govern during times of national crisis. The tactic successfully captured traditionally Labour-voting "Red Wall" constituencies, exploiting Brexit-induced cultural polarisation while simultaneously dodging the scrutiny applied to conventional political broadcasting.¹⁸

2.2 The Pre-Premiership Accumulation of Capital

This hyper-focus on messaging and brand management was deeply intertwined with Johnson's personal financial trajectory. Prior to ascending to the premiership, his tenure as a Member of Parliament was characterised by the relentless pursuit of private capital. Data analysis from the Parliamentary Register of Financial Interests reveals that during the preceding Parliament, Johnson was the highest-earning MP, accumulating nearly £800,000 in secondary earnings, royalties, and speaking fees.²²

This figure dwarfed the earnings of his parliamentary peers and included highly lucrative engagements with entities such as Living India Media (£122,899) and Citigroup Global Markets (£38,250), entirely independent of his £77,000 parliamentary salary and previous ministerial stipends.²² This early integration into elite corporate networks and international media conglomerates demonstrates a long-standing operational ethos where public office serves as a high-visibility platform to accelerate private commercial valuation—a pattern that would exponentially accelerate following his departure from Number 10.

3. Research Thread 2: Pandemic Procurement and the "VIP Lane" Wealth Transfer

The most quantifiable instance of structural administrative failure during the Johnson premiership occurred during the procurement of Personal Protective Equipment (PPE) and medical supplies throughout the COVID-19 pandemic. While the unprecedented urgency of the global crisis necessitated rapid governmental action, the Johnson administration utilised emergency powers to systematically bypass competitive tendering regulations. This circumvention resulted in a staggering, multi-billion-pound transfer of public wealth to politically connected individuals and corporate entities lacking relevant supply chain experience.¹

3.1 The Mechanics of the VIP Lane

The Cabinet Office and the Department of Health and Social Care (DHSC) established a highly controversial, fast-track mechanism known as the "VIP Lane." This system was explicitly designed to prioritise contract offers from companies referred by government ministers, Conservative MPs, and senior political operatives.²⁴

A subsequent, exhaustive investigation by Transparency International UK identified systemic bias, opaque accounting, and severe conflicts of interest operating at the heart of this system. The report noted that one in five government COVID-19 contracts awarded between February and November 2020 contained one or more "red flags" for possible corruption.²⁵ The financial scale of this procurement malpractice was catastrophic. The Good Law Project, which successfully brought a High Court challenge in 2022 determining the VIP Lane to be fundamentally unlawful, revealed through leaked internal documents that the true number of companies fast-tracked was far higher than the government initially admitted.²³

Implicated Corporate Entity	Nature of Contract & Political Connection	Financial Value & Documented Outcome
-----------------------------	---	--------------------------------------

Uniserve	Logistics firm awarded vast freight and PPE supply contracts. High Court judgements later revealed the firm supplied unusable equipment.	Total contracts valued at £1.4 billion , including £178.5 million for never-used equipment. ²⁷
PPE Medpro	Directly linked to Conservative peer Michelle Mone and Doug Barrowman. Fast-tracked via the VIP lane to supply surgical gowns.	Ordered by the High Court to refund the full £122 million to the DHSC for supplying unsafe, unusable equipment. ²³
Jason Offshore Equipment	Hong Kong-based oil and gas firm awarded a PPE contract despite lacking any medical supply experience.	£25 million contract awarded in June 2020; contract details remained illegally unpublished for 18 months. ²⁶
Beijing Union Glory Investment Co.	Firm operating out of a Beijing hotel room awarded a massive medical supply contract.	£96 million contract awarded without competitive tender. ²⁶
China Meheco Co. & Winner Medical	Supply firms linked to alleged human rights abuses in the Xinjiang region.	Awarded contracts worth £173 million . ²⁶

In total, 68 VIP companies were awarded an aggregate of £4.9 billion in PPE contracts entirely without competition.²⁶ Transparency International reported that £1 billion of public money was wasted on entirely unusable PPE supplied via this route, while the broader counter-fraud function estimated total COVID-related fraud across all government support schemes at £7.2 billion.¹

The VIP Lane scandal transcends mere bureaucratic inefficiency; it highlights a profound structural vulnerability where the mechanisms of state procurement were captured by partisan networks. The persistent refusal of the Conservative government to proactively investigate these failed contracts, citing "commercial confidentiality," underscores an executive culture deeply resistant to financial accountability.²³ It ultimately required external judicial intervention and the transition to a Labour government to initiate formal fraud investigations and the appointment of a COVID corruption commissioner to reclaim the squandered capital.¹

4. Research Thread 3: The "Shadow Government" and the Evaporation of the Public Record

Under Boris Johnson's leadership, the traditional constitutional balance of power between elected cabinet ministers and the impartial Civil Service was aggressively dismantled. The administration cultivated a highly centralised "shadow government" heavily reliant on unelected Special Advisers (SpAds), consolidating unprecedented operational control within Number 10 Downing Street under the direction of Chief Adviser Dominic Cummings and Director of

Communications Lee Cain.³

4.1 The Consolidation of SpAd Power and Cultural Toxicity

This centralisation fundamentally disempowered cabinet ministers, narrowing the range of advice reaching the Prime Minister and fostering a highly combative relationship with the civil service.³ The financial burden of this expanded SpAd apparatus was significant; by the 2022–2023 financial year, the special adviser pay bill reached £15.9 million. This figure included a massive £2.9 million in severance costs, with £1.9 million incurred solely under Johnson's administration due to extreme staff turnover and internal factional warfare.³¹

The operational and psychological consequences of this centralisation were devastatingly exposed during the UK Covid-19 Inquiry. The inquiry's second report concluded that a "toxic and chaotic culture" at the centre of the Johnson government directly hindered national decision-making.⁴ Evidence presented to Baroness Hallett revealed an environment characterised by "incompetence, backstabbing and misogyny." Cummings was accused of deploying "aggressive, foul-mouthed and misogynistic" abuse toward female civil servants, notoriously attempting to sack Deputy Cabinet Secretary Helen MacNamara while stating that Number 10 was "dodging stilettos" from her.³⁴

The inquiry report placed direct culpability on Johnson, noting he was informed of these cultural failings as early as May 2020 but permitted a culture where louder voices prevailed and female colleagues were routinely ignored, to the clear detriment of the national pandemic response.⁴ Furthermore, Johnson's own WhatsApp messages revealed a shockingly dismissive attitude toward vulnerable populations, with evidence demonstrating he told senior advisers that the virus was "just nature's way of dealing with old people".³⁴

4.2 The WhatsApp Deletions and the Subversion of the Inquiries Act

Beyond cultural toxicity, the Johnson administration engaged in the systemic, deliberate evasion of statutory public record-keeping. Top officials, including the Prime Minister himself, routinely utilised private WhatsApp channels on personal mobile devices to conduct highly sensitive government business, effectively bypassing official civil service archiving protocols.³⁵ When legally compelled to provide these communications to the Covid Inquiry, Johnson claimed that 5,000 vital messages spanning the critical pandemic onset period of January to June 2020 were inexplicably "lost" due to a "factory reset" and the application "automatically erasing" the data.³⁷ This technical obfuscation represents a profound evaporation of the historical record.

When the Inquiry Chair, Baroness Hallett, issued a legal notice under the Inquiries Act 2005 demanding the unredacted disclosure of Johnson's notebooks, diaries, and remaining WhatsApp messages, the government launched an unprecedented judicial review against its own inquiry.³⁹ The Cabinet Office argued that the documents contained "unambiguously irrelevant material," a desperate bid to block public scrutiny.³⁹ The High Court decisively dismissed the government's claim, ruling that the inquiry possessed the statutory latitude to pursue documents relevant to its investigations.³⁹ This protracted legal warfare demonstrates a profound institutional hostility toward transparency, reinforcing the perception of a government operating entirely outside the boundaries of normative accountability.

5. Research Thread 4: The Partygate Subversion and the Institutional Reckoning

The culmination of Johnson's executive overreach was the "Partygate" scandal. While the revelation that the Prime Minister and his staff systematically violated the draconian lockdown restrictions they had legally imposed upon the British populace caused severe societal trauma, the true constitutional crisis lay in Johnson's subsequent, sustained campaign to deceive the legislature regarding these events.

Following an exhaustive, multi-month investigation, the House of Commons Privileges Committee delivered a historic and universally damning verdict. The Committee concluded that Johnson had deliberately misled Parliament regarding his knowledge of the illicit gatherings, representing a severe contempt of Parliament.⁵

5.1 The Five Offences and the Constitutional Crisis

The Committee's final report identified that Johnson had committed five distinct, highly serious parliamentary offences:

1. Deliberately misleading the House of Commons: He repeatedly asserted at the dispatch box that no Covid rules were broken in Number 10, despite possessing direct, personal knowledge to the contrary.⁵
2. Deliberately misleading the Privileges Committee: During his sworn oral testimony, he reiterated false arguments and attempted to "rewrite the meaning" of the COVID regulations, bizarrely arguing that staff leaving drinks were "lawful" gatherings necessary to boost workplace morale.⁵
3. Breaching parliamentary confidence: He leaked the committee's provisional, confidential findings prior to their official publication.⁵
4. Impugning the Committee: He publicly attacked the integrity of the committee, thereby undermining the democratic, disciplinary processes of Parliament itself.⁵
5. Complicity in a campaign of abuse: He tacitly endorsed and encouraged attempts by his political allies to intimidate the committee members.⁵

The severity of these infractions led the committee to recommend an unprecedented 90-day suspension from the House of Commons.⁵ This penalty vastly exceeded the 10-day threshold required under the Recall of MPs Act 2015 to trigger a recall petition in his Uxbridge and South Ruislip constituency.⁴¹ Recognising the inevitability of his removal, Johnson pre-emptively resigned his seat, issuing a vitriolic statement denouncing the committee as a "kangaroo court".⁶ Consequently, the committee further recommended that he be stripped of his ex-Member's parliamentary pass, effectively exiling him from the parliamentary estate—a devastating, formal revocation of his institutional standing.⁵

6. Research Thread 5: The Resignation Honours Abuse

In his final, retributive act of executive privilege, Johnson weaponised his resignation honours list to reward loyalists, major financial donors, and the specific political aides deeply implicated in his administration's scandals. This action severely degraded the reputation of the House of Lords and fundamentally corrupted the British honours system.

6.1 The HOLAC Rejections and the Elevation of Cronies

The House of Lords Appointments Commission (HOLAC) took the extraordinary step of formally rejecting eight of Johnson's nominees on the grounds of propriety. With only seven new peers ultimately making it onto the approved list, this represented a staggering rejection rate of over 50%, compared to a historical average of roughly 10%.⁴³

Despite this unprecedented institutional rebuke, Johnson successfully ennobled highly controversial figures. The list included 29-year-old Charlotte Owen and 30-year-old Ross Kempself, both former junior aides with minimal external professional experience, making them among the youngest life peers in the history of the British parliament.⁴⁴ Furthermore, he utilised the honours system to elevate deeply partisan political allies and regional figures such as Ben Houchen and Shaun Bailey, cementing a legacy of patronage.⁴⁶

6.2 Rewarding the Intimidators

The most egregious aspect of the resignation honours list was the explicit reward of Conservative Members of Parliament who had actively sought to intimidate the Privileges Committee on Johnson's behalf. Figures such as Jacob Rees-Mogg, Priti Patel, Michael Fabricant, and Andrea Jenkyns—all of whom were formally named and condemned by the Committee in a special supplementary report for their interference and attempts to "impugn the integrity" of the inquiry—were subsequently granted knighthoods or damehoods by Johnson.⁶

This overt, transactional reward for obstructing a parliamentary investigation represents a profound degradation of constitutional norms. It parallels historical controversies such as Lloyd George's "cash for patronage" scandal and Harold Wilson's "Lavender List," but elevates the abuse by actively weaponising the honours system against the legislature's own disciplinary bodies.⁴⁷

7. Research Thread 6: The Truss Ascendancy and Tufton Street Corporate Capture

If the Johnson administration represented the gradual decay of institutional integrity through prolonged ethical attrition, the premiership of Mary Elizabeth (Liz) Truss represented an acute, systemic shock. Serving for a mere 49 days—the shortest tenure in British political history—Truss's administration provides a definitive, terrifying case study in the dangers of ideological capture, wherein empirical macroeconomic reality is entirely subjugated by radical libertarian theory.⁴⁹

7.1 The 55 Tufton Street Nexus and the Funding of an Ideology

To understand the rapidity and severity of the Truss collapse, one must forensically map the network of "dark money" donors, libertarian think tanks, and right-wing political action groups that engineered her ascent. Following the resignation of Boris Johnson, Truss contested the July–September 2022 Conservative leadership election against rivals such as Rishi Sunak, Penny Mordaunt, and Tom Tugendhat.⁵⁰

Truss's ideology was deeply intertwined with the opaque organisations headquartered around 55 Tufton Street in Westminster, notably the Institute of Economic Affairs (IEA), the TaxPayers' Alliance, and the Centre for Policy Studies.⁵¹ During the leadership campaign, Truss received £424,349 in personal donations.¹⁰ This massive capital injection was sourced from a highly concentrated network of billionaires, property developers, and hedge fund managers, fundamentally misaligned with the economic realities of the broader electorate.

Principal Donor	Financial Contribution	Corporate / Ideological Background
Fitriani Hay	£100,000	Wife of a former BP executive; major Conservative Party donor. ¹⁰
Natasha Barnaba	£100,000	Interior designer; wife of an investment banker. ¹⁰
Howard Shore	£50,000	Investment banker and real estate investor; Chairman of Shore Capital Group. ¹⁰
Lord Michael Spencer	£25,000	Billionaire former Conservative treasurer who aggressively lobbied for the removal of the cap on bankers' bonuses. ¹⁰
Jon Moynihan	£20,000	Director of the IEA Forum (non-charitable arm of the Institute of Economic Affairs). ¹⁰
SJJ Contracts	£15,000	Construction and real estate firm. ¹⁰

Upon securing the premiership, Truss immediately integrated the architects of these Tufton Street think tanks into the highest echelons of the British state. Her Downing Street operation included Ruth Porter (former IEA communications director) as Deputy Chief of Staff, Matt Sinclair (former TaxPayers' Alliance) as Chief Economic Advisor, and Sophie Jarvis (former Adam Smith Institute) as Political Secretary.¹⁰ This constituted a total "corporate capture" of the executive branch. The macroeconomic policy formulation of the United Kingdom was effectively outsourced to un-elected, opaquely funded lobbyists who had spent a decade advocating for the eradication of state regulation and the slashing of corporate taxation.¹⁰

8. Research Thread 7: The Purge of the Treasury and the OBR Evasion

The prerequisite for executing this radical libertarian agenda was the immediate removal of institutional resistance and economic scrutiny within Whitehall. Truss and her newly appointed Chancellor, Kwasi Kwarteng, identified the civil service—specifically the Treasury—as the primary impediment to their "pro-growth" agenda, disparagingly referring to standard fiscal prudence as "Treasury orthodoxy".⁹

8.1 The Firing of Sir Tom Scholar

On her very first day in office (September 6, 2022), Truss summarily fired Sir Tom Scholar, the highly respected Permanent Secretary to the Treasury.⁸ Scholar, a veteran civil servant who had successfully guided the UK economy through the 2008 global financial crisis and the complex COVID-19 furlough schemes, was removed without any question of underperformance, purely for ideological non-alignment.⁵⁵

This abrupt dismissal was an act of extreme political vandalism that sent shockwaves through the civil service.⁵⁷ Former Cabinet Secretaries, including Lord Butler and Lord Turnbull, publicly condemned the move. Lord Butler warned that firing the top civil servant on day one threatened the foundational principle of an impartial, merit-based civil service, stating it would "corrupt our system".⁵⁶ The FEA union leadership, representing senior civil servants, categorised the sacking as an "extraordinary act" that disempowered the state from speaking "truth unto power".⁵⁵ By neutralizing the Treasury's risk-assessment capabilities and removing its most experienced crisis manager, Truss created an epistemological vacuum, ensuring there would be no internal resistance to the impending fiscal catastrophe.

8.2 The Evasion of the Office for Budget Responsibility

Simultaneously, Truss and Kwarteng deliberately sidelined the Office for Budget Responsibility (OBR), the independent watchdog created to provide transparent analysis of the UK's public finances. While the OBR explicitly confirmed in a letter to parliamentarians that it had provided a draft forecast on Kwarteng's first day and offered to provide a fully updated economic and fiscal forecast alongside the forthcoming fiscal event, Kwarteng refused to commission it.¹¹ This unprecedented evasion of statutory oversight removed the final remaining guardrail against un-costed economic policy.¹¹

9. Research Thread 8: The Mini-Budget, the LDI Crisis, and Macroeconomic Collapse

On September 23, 2022, Chancellor Kwasi Kwarteng delivered the "Growth Plan," universally dubbed the "mini-budget." Operating within the vacuum created by the Scholar firing and the OBR evasion, the statement announced a staggering £45 billion in unfunded tax cuts, disproportionately benefiting the highest earners.¹¹ These radical measures included abolishing the 45% top rate of income tax, cancelling planned corporation tax increases, and reversing recent National Insurance hikes.¹¹

9.1 Sovereign Debt Crisis and the LDI "Doom Loop"

The financial markets immediately recognised that the UK government was planning to issue vast amounts of sovereign debt without any credible mechanism to fund it, nor any independent OBR analysis to verify its viability.¹¹ The reaction was swift and violently destructive. The value of the pound plummeted to a historic low against the US dollar, and government borrowing costs (gilt yields) spiked vertically, recording movements over four days that exceeded the annual increases seen in 23 of the past 27 years.¹¹

This sudden, massive spike in gilt yields triggered a severe, secondary crisis within the UK pension sector, specifically regarding Liability-Driven Investments (LDI).¹³ As interest rates surged, pension funds were forced to rapidly sell off gilts to meet sudden collateral calls on derivative contracts. This mass sell-off further depressed gilt prices and raised yields, creating a "doom loop" that threatened to completely collapse the UK pension system.¹²

To prevent total systemic contagion, the politically independent Bank of England was forced to launch a £65 billion emergency bond-buying programme to restore orderly market conditions.¹¹ The International Monetary Fund (IMF) issued a stunning public rebuke, urging the UK government to re-evaluate the tax cuts.¹¹ According to analysis by the Resolution Foundation, the ideological gamble of the mini-budget ultimately cost the UK Treasury approximately £30 billion, erasing vast amounts of national wealth and permanently elevating mortgage costs for millions of British citizens.⁵¹

9.2 The "Anti-Growth Coalition" and Populist Deflection

In the midst of this self-inflicted economic meltdown, Truss attempted to deflect accountability by doubling down on populist rhetoric. Addressing the Conservative Party conference in October 2022, rather than addressing the market chaos and soaring mortgage rates, she launched a blistering attack on a manufactured, nebulous enemy she termed the "anti-growth coalition".⁶⁴

Truss categorised Labour politicians, trade unions, environmental activists, "Brexit deniers," and "north London liberals" as an interconnected cabal actively working to ruin the country.⁶⁵ This rhetorical framing mirrors the exact "zero-sum grievance" narratives deployed by populist insurgents. By attempting to reframe an objective mathematical failure (unfunded debt) as a cultural conspiracy engineered by the media and the left, Truss sought to insulate herself from empirical scrutiny.⁶⁵ However, the reality of collapsing market confidence proved immune to cultural scapegoating, leading to the rapid reversal of almost all her policies, the dismissal of Kwarteng, and her own humiliating resignation on October 25, 2022.⁴⁹

10. Research Thread 9: Post-Governance Reputational

Laundering and the Monetisation of Failure

The contemporary political architecture of the United Kingdom reveals a deeply concerning epilogue to the Johnson and Truss administrations: the systematic, highly lucrative monetisation of political failure. Rather than facing long-term professional or economic accountability, both former Prime Ministers have transitioned into sophisticated campaigns of reputational laundering, utilising private corporate vehicles to extract vast sums of capital from international geopolitical networks.

10.1 Boris Johnson: Global Corporate Vehicles and the PDCA Exploitation

Following his departure from Downing Street, Boris Johnson rapidly established a multi-million-pound enterprise based entirely on his political notoriety. A month after leaving office, he incorporated a private entity formally registered as "The Office of Boris Johnson Limited," which serves as his primary corporate vehicle to manage his commercial operations.¹⁷ Severe transparency concerns have arisen regarding the intersection of this private commercial entity and public funds. Johnson is entitled to the Public Duty Costs Allowance (PDCA), a taxpayer-funded subsidy of up to £115,000 annually, strictly designated to cover expenses associated with a former Prime Minister's ongoing public duties, not private commercial activities.¹⁷ Official data indicates Johnson claimed £182,000 under this scheme, with Cabinet Office sources confirming these taxpayer funds are used to pay staff salaries within his private office.¹⁷

Simultaneously, this private office facilitated a staggering influx of commercial revenue. Leaked files (the "Boris Files") and parliamentary registers indicate that between late 2022 and May 2024, Johnson earned over £5 million from 34 paid speaking engagements.¹⁷ The remuneration scale is astronomical; he routinely commands upwards of $350,000 (£276,000) for a single appearance.⁶⁹

Corporate Client / Event	Geographic Location	Date of Engagement	Fee Declared
Centerview Partners (Investment Bank)	New York, US	November 2022	£277,723 ($405,000) ⁷⁰
Hindustan Times	New Delhi, India	November 2022	£261,652 ($350,000) ⁷⁰
Council of Insurance Agents & Brokers	Washington DC, US	October 2022	£276,130 ($350,000) ⁷⁰
Televisao Independente (CNN Summit)	Lisbon, Portugal	November 2022	£215,275 ⁷¹
Clearlake Capital (Private Equity)	California, US	May 2024	$250,000 ¹⁷

Beyond these exorbitant speaking fees, Johnson has actively engaged in opaque international lobbying. Leaked documents indicate he secretly lobbied the UAE for a "billion-dollar private venture" and received £240,000 following a meeting with Venezuelan President Nicolás Maduro.¹⁷ The Advisory Committee on Business Appointments (Acoba) subsequently launched investigations into his conduct for breaching rules designed to prevent former ministers from exploiting global contacts made while in public office for personal commercial gain.¹⁷ His corporate footprint also includes high-level advisory roles, such as serving as a consultant for Maple Research Limited (business intelligence) and Hyannis Strategy Limited.⁶⁷

10.2 Liz Truss: "Popular Conservatism" and Transatlantic Populism

Liz Truss has pursued a dual strategy of financial extraction and hard-right ideological rehabilitation. Refusing to acknowledge the empirical failure of her economic policies, Truss has aggressively attempted to rewrite the history of her premiership by integrating herself into the global, Trump-aligned populist network.

In early 2024, Truss launched "Popular Conservatism" (PopCon), a factional movement explicitly designed to push the Conservative Party further to the political right.¹⁶ At the launch, she blamed "left-wing extremists," the media, and a failure to challenge "wokeism" for Britain's woes, completely ignoring her own role in the 2022 market crash.¹⁶ Investigative journalism by Byline Times revealed that the PopCon website was registered by Popular Development Partners Limited, a company directed by Mark Littlewood, the former Director General of the Institute of Economic Affairs (IEA)—proving that the exact same dark-money network that engineered her disastrous premiership continues to fund her post-political insurgency.⁷³ Truss subsequently elevated this narrative onto the international stage, appearing at the Conservative Political Action Conference (CPAC) in the United States in early 2024.¹⁵ Addressing American Republicans, Truss aligned herself with Steve Bannon's rhetoric, claiming that her tax cuts were sabotaged by the "deep state," the IMF, and the global corporate establishment.¹⁵

Concurrently, Truss exploited her brief tenure as a world leader to command exorbitant international speaking fees. In May 2023, she received an £80,000 payment from the Prospect Foundation, a Taiwan-based think tank, for a keynote address urging Western decoupling from China, an engagement that resulted in severe diplomatic backlash from Beijing.⁷⁸ Her parliamentary register of interests also details payments of nearly £20,000 for an appearance at the Young America's Foundation in California, alongside massive hospitality and flight expenses, and further engagements at Pepperdine University.⁷⁹

11. Strategic Blueprint for Institutional Resilience (Conclusions)

The administrations of Boris Johnson and Liz Truss fundamentally stress-tested the unwritten, convention-based constitution of the United Kingdom. The empirical record demonstrates that both leaders viewed institutional neutrality—whether it was the independence of the civil service, the forecasting authority of the OBR, or the investigative powers of parliamentary committees—not as vital democratic safeguards, but as hostile entities to be bypassed, politicised, or destroyed.

To prevent the recurrence of such profound administrative and macroeconomic trauma, future legislative frameworks must transition from reliance on "good chap" conventions to stringent, statutory enforcement:

1. Codifying the Fiscal Lock: The economic collapse triggered by the Truss mini-budget proves that Chancellors cannot be permitted to issue massive, un-costed fiscal events on ideological whims. The implementation of the Budget Responsibility Bill—which legally mandates an OBR assessment for any fiscally significant announcement—is a vital, non-negotiable step to protect sovereign debt stability and prevent future subversion of financial reality.¹¹
2. Statutory Protection of the Civil Service: The retaliatory firing of Sir Tom Scholar highlights the vulnerability of the permanent civil service to partisan purges.⁹ The appointment and dismissal of Permanent Secretaries must be insulated from immediate, unilateral ministerial whim, requiring independent oversight to prevent the eradication of institutional memory.
3. Reform of the Honours System and Post-Political Lobbying: The resignation honours system, utterly disgraced by Johnson's appointment of implicated aides and Privileges Committee saboteurs, must be abolished or subjected to binding, veto-powered oversight by HOLAC.⁴⁸ Furthermore, bodies like Acoba require statutory teeth to issue severe financial penalties against former Prime Ministers who misuse taxpayer-funded allowances (like the PDCA) to subsidise private corporate entities or engage in undisclosed international lobbying.¹⁷

Ultimately, the political histories of Boris Johnson and Liz Truss are intrinsically linked by a shared outcome: the privatisation of consequence. While the British public continues to bear the generational costs of the VIP Lane waste, the LDI mortgage spike, and diminished public services, both architects of these crises have successfully transitioned into a lucrative global ecosystem of dark-money think tanks and £250,000 speaking engagements. Without aggressive regulatory reform, the United Kingdom's political architecture remains highly susceptible to future actors seeking to exploit the state for short-term ideological gain and long-term corporate reward.

Works cited

1. Controversies regarding COVID-19 contracts in the United Kingdom - Wikipedia, accessed April 24, 2026, https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Controversies_regarding_COVID-19_contracts_in_the_United_Kingdom
2. Boris Johnson's spad reforms 'disempowering ministers and weakening government', accessed April 24, 2026, <https://www.civilserviceworld.com/professions/article/boris-johnsons-spad-reforms-disempowering-ministers-and-weakening-decision-making>
3. Special advisers and the Johnson government: How the prime minister and his team are changing the role, accessed April 24, 2026,

<https://www.instituteforgovernment.org.uk/publication/special-advisers-and-johnson-government>

4. Covid Inquiry: Toxic culture at centre of government hindered decision-making, accessed April 24, 2026,
<https://www.civilserviceworld.com/professions/article/covid-inquiry-toxic-culture-at-centre-of-government-hindered-decisionmaking>
5. Partygate report: key findings of Commons privileges committee - The Guardian, accessed April 24, 2026,
<https://www.theguardian.com/politics/2023/jun/15/partygate-report-key-findings-of-commons-privileges-committee-boris-johnson>
6. Commons Privileges Committee investigation into Boris Johnson - Wikipedia, accessed April 24, 2026, https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Commons_Privileges_Committee_investigation_into_Boris_Johnson
7. Matter referred on 21 April 2022 (conduct of Rt Hon Boris Johnson): Final Report - Committee of Privileges - Parliament UK, accessed April 24, 2026,
<https://publications.parliament.uk/pa/cm5803/cmselect/cmprivi/564/summary.html>
8. Why is Liz Truss sacking top civil servants? Because she wants to suppress dissent | Simon Jenkins | The Guardian, accessed April 24, 2026,
<https://www.theguardian.com/commentisfree/2022/sep/12/liz-truss-sacking-civil-servants-government>
9. 'Politicisation' of the Civil Service? The House of Lords Constitution Committee Reports, accessed April 24, 2026, <https://consoc.org.uk/politicisation-of-the-civil-service-hlcc-report/>
10. The Truss Network: Who are the New Prime Minister's Donors and ..., accessed April 24, 2026, <https://bylinetimes.com/2022/09/09/truss-network-who-are-the-new-prime-ministers-donors-and-advisors/>
11. Budget Responsibility Bill: HL Bill 24 of 2024–25 - UK Parliament, accessed April 24, 2026,
<https://researchbriefings.files.parliament.uk/documents/LLN-2024-0051/LLN-2024-0051.pdf>
12. The mini-budget that broke Britain – and Liz Truss | Economics | The Guardian, accessed April 24, 2026,
<https://www.theguardian.com/business/2022/oct/20/the-mini-budget-that-broke-britain-and-liz-truss>
13. Did Liz Truss Crash the Economy? Europe Economics, accessed April 24, 2026,
<https://europe-economics.com/wp-content/uploads/2025/01/Did-Liz-Truss-Crash-the-Economy-Final.pdf>
14. Boris Johnson declares more than £1 million in speaking fees since leaving office - ITVX, accessed April 24, 2026,
<https://www.itv.com/news/2022-12-14/johnson-declares-more-than-1-million-in-speaking-fees-since-leaving-office>
15. Britain's 'deep state' thwarted my plans, Liz Truss tells US far-right summit - The

- Guardian, accessed April 24, 2026,
<https://www.theguardian.com/us-news/2024/feb/21/liz-truss-deep-state-cpac-far-right>
16. Former British PM Liz Truss announces new political movement ahead of polls - Al Jazeera, accessed April 24, 2026,
<https://www.aljazeera.com/news/2024/2/6/former-british-pm-liz-truss-announce-s-new-political-movement-ahead-of-polls>
 17. Putin views, queen stories and a boss's birthday bash: Boris Johnson's £5m worth of paid speeches - The Guardian, accessed April 24, 2026,
<https://www.theguardian.com/uk-news/2025/sep/09/boris-johnson-paid-speeches-putin-queen-birthday-bash>
 18. Boris's Britain. The impact of populism on the 2019 General Election in England., accessed April 24, 2026,
<https://blogs.qub.ac.uk/pb-happ/2024/04/23/boriss-britain-the-impact-of-populism-on-the-2019-general-election-in-england/>
 19. Conservative Party's Election 2020 Digital Strategy Valent Projects Key Observations: • The Tory party has radically change - Webflow, accessed April 24, 2026, https://uploads-ssl.webflow.com/5e68e49babaae714aa0b77b2/5ee8dd7339cbb38134f75627_Tories%20Digital%20Strategy.pdf
 20. How the media helped Boris Johnson win the election | Media Reform Coalition, accessed April 24, 2026,
<https://www.mediareform.org.uk/blog/how-the-media-helped-boris-johnson-win-the-election>
 21. From Bad to Worse? The Media and the 2019 Election Campaign - Oxford Academic, accessed April 24, 2026, https://academic.oup.com/pa/article/73/Supplement_1/272/5910280
 22. Johnson Moonlights for £800k, Corbyn Just Does the Job - Byline Times, accessed April 24, 2026, <https://bylinetimes.com/2019/12/03/johnson-moonlights-for-800k-corbyn-just-does-the-job/>
 23. Covid-19 and the private sector - NHS for Sale, accessed April 24, 2026,
<https://www.nhsforsale.info/covid-19-contracts-with-the-private-sector/>
 24. The Sheer Scale of the COVID 'VIP Lane' PPE Scandal Has Still Not Been Revealed Five Years On - Byline Times, accessed April 24, 2026, <https://bylinetimes.com/2025/04/16/covid-inquiry-vip-ppe/>
 25. Fifth of UK Covid contracts 'raised red flags for possible corruption' - The Guardian, accessed April 24, 2026,
<https://www.theguardian.com/world/2021/apr/22/fifth-of-uk-covid-contracts-raised-red-flags-for-possible-corruption>
 26. Revealed: Ministers have misled Parliament about the size of the VIP lane, accessed April 24, 2026,
<https://goodlawproject.org/ministers-have-misled-parliament/>
 27. Revealed: the billion-pound PPE contractor with a Tory MP on site | Covid inquiry, accessed April 24, 2026,

- <https://www.theguardian.com/uk-news/2025/nov/08/billion-pound-ppe-contract-or-uniserve-tory-mp>
28. COVID Cronyism and Mone – The Tip of the Iceberg: Byline Times' Full Story of the PPE Cash Carousel, accessed April 24, 2026, <https://bylinetimes.com/2023/12/20/covid-cronyism-and-mone-the-tip-of-the-iceberg-byline-times-full-story-of-the-ppe-cash-carousel/>
 29. Dominic Cummings – Wikipedia, accessed April 24, 2026, https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Dominic_Cummings
 30. Whitehall's take on Johnson's reshuffle: this prime minister is insecure – The Guardian, accessed April 24, 2026, <https://www.theguardian.com/commentisfree/2020/feb/19/whitehall-boris-johnson-cabinet-reshuffle>
 31. Special adviser data releases: numbers and costs, July 2023 (HTML) – GOV.UK, accessed April 24, 2026, <https://www.gov.uk/government/publications/special-adviser-data-releases-numbers-and-costs-july-2023/special-adviser-data-releases-numbers-and-costs-july-2023-html>
 32. Annual Report on Special Advisers 2023 – GOV.UK, accessed April 24, 2026, https://assets.publishing.service.gov.uk/media/64e36fba3309b700121c9bc1/2023-06-20_-_SpAd_Annual_Report_2023_v3.docx.pdf
 33. Government response slammed in 'damning' COVID Inquiry findings – YouTube, accessed April 24, 2026, <https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=Y4ULI-d31c4>
 34. 'Nastiness, arrogance and misogyny' of No 10 exposed at Covid inquiry – The Guardian, accessed April 24, 2026, <https://www.theguardian.com/uk-news/2023/oct/31/covid-inquiry-exposes-incompetence-backstabbing-and-misogyny>
 35. The Covid Inquiry and the case of the disappearing WhatsApps | Trowers & Hamlins law firm, accessed April 24, 2026, <https://www.trowers.com/insights/2023/december/the-covid-inquiry-and-the-case-of-the-disappearing-whatsapps>
 36. The British government's problems with information security – UK in a changing Europe, accessed April 24, 2026, <https://ukandeu.ac.uk/the-british-governments-problems-with-information-security/>
 37. Boris Johnson denies deleting Whatsapp messages ahead of Covid inquiry – YouTube, accessed April 24, 2026, https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=gQn_CssN2hl
 38. Covid Inquiry: Johnson says WhatsApp 'somehow automatically erased' 5,000 messages, accessed April 24, 2026, <https://www.civilserviceworld.com/news/article/johnson-says-5000-messages-lost-due-to-whatsapp-automatically-erasing-things>
 39. Government loses judicial review on Covid-19 Inquiry WhatsApps, accessed April 24, 2026, <https://www.instituteforgovernment.org.uk/comment/government-loses-judicial-review-covid-inquiry-whatsapps>

40. Government Loses Legal Bid To Hide Boris Johnson's WhatsApps From Covid Inquiry, accessed April 24, 2026, https://www.huffingtonpost.co.uk/entry/government-loses-legal-bid-to-keep-boris-johnsons-whatsapps-from-covid-inquiry_uk_64a6cb25e4b07252cc0ff658
41. Privileges Committee investigation into Boris Johnson | Institute for Government, accessed April 24, 2026,
<https://www.instituteforgovernment.org.uk/explainer/privileges-committee-investigation-boris-johnson>
42. The Privileges Committee - UK in a changing Europe, accessed April 24, 2026, <https://ukandeu.ac.uk/explainers/the-privileges-committee/>
43. Five reasons we should be troubled by Boris Johnson's resignations honours, accessed April 24, 2026,
<https://www.instituteforgovernment.org.uk/comment/boris-johnsons-resignation-s-honours>
44. Boris Johnson's 'corrupt' honours list of party donors fuels calls for Lords' reform, accessed April 24, 2026,
<https://www.sundaypost.com/fp/johnsons-honours-fuel-callfor-lords-reform/>
45. Reasons given for Boris Johnson peerages 'inadequate', campaigner says - The Guardian, accessed April 24, 2026,
<https://www.theguardian.com/politics/2025/jan/09/reasons-given-for-boris-johnson-peerages-inadequate-campaigner-says>
46. 2022 Prime Minister's Resignation Honours (Boris Johnson) - Wikipedia, accessed April 24, 2026, https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/2022_Prime_Minister%27s_Resignation_Honours_\(Boris_Johnson\))
47. A 'dishonourable' honours list by Boris Johnson would further expose the fallacy of the UK's system of 'club government' | LSE British Politics, accessed April 24, 2026,
<https://blogs.lse.ac.uk/politicsandpolicy/dishonourable-honours-list-johnson/>
48. How honourable are honours lists? - Electoral Reform Society, accessed April 24, 2026, <https://electoral-reform.org.uk/how-honourable-are-honours-lists/>
49. Liz Truss - Wikipedia, accessed April 24, 2026, https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Liz_Truss
50. July–September 2022 Conservative Party leadership election - Wikipedia, accessed April 24, 2026, https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/July%E2%80%93September_2022_Conservative_Party_leadership_election
51. September 2022 United Kingdom mini-budget - Wikipedia, accessed April 24, 2026, https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/September_2022_United_Kingdom_mini-budget
52. Tufton Street Linked Donors Have Given £630,000 to the Conservatives Since Sunak Became Prime Minister - DeSmog, accessed April 24, 2026, <https://www.desmog.com/2023/04/21/tufton-street-linked-donors-have-given-630000-to-the-conservatives-since-sunak-became-prime-minister/>
53. Liz Truss received £425000 in personal donations during her Tory leadership bid,

- accessed April 24, 2026,
<https://www.bigissue.com/news/politics/liz-truss-received-425000-in-personal-donations-during-her-tory-leadership-bid/>
54. The Register of Members' Financial Interests (20 March 2023: Truss, Elizabeth),
accessed April 24, 2026,
https://publications.parliament.uk/pa/cm/cmregmem/230320/truss_elizabeth.htm
 55. Truss Government Accused Of "Weakness" After Sacking Treasury Permanent Secretary, accessed April 24, 2026, <https://www.politicshome.com/news/article/tom-scholar-sacked-treasury-permanent-secretary-dave-penman-fda>
 56. Sacking Tom Scholar risks politicising civil service, says Lord Butler - The Guardian, accessed April 24, 2026, <https://www.theguardian.com/politics/2022/sep/11/sacking-tom-scholar-risks-politicising-civils-service-says-lord-butler>
 57. Top civil servants' criticism of Simon Case mounts in Treasury sacking row - Global Government Forum, accessed April 24, 2026, <https://www.globalgovernmentforum.com/top-officials-criticism-of-uk-cabinet-secretary-and-pm-mounts-us-management-office-asks-public-to-help-government-answer-toughest-questions-management-workforce-news-in/>
 58. Permanent Secretaries: Appointment and Removal (Consti - Hansard, accessed April 24, 2026,
<https://hansard.parliament.uk/lords/2024-05-09/debates/ED3CD883-43D1-4B7C-ABED-7B098DEAE44A/PermanentSecretariesAppointmentAndRemoval%28ConstitutionCommitteeReport%29>
 59. Why Liz Truss is right to take on 'The Blob' - spiked, accessed April 24, 2026,
<https://www.spiked-online.com/2022/09/13/why-liz-truss-is-right-to-take-on-the-blob/>
 60. OBR: we offered to update forecasts in time for 'mini-budget' – as it happened | Politics, accessed April 24, 2026,
<https://www.theguardian.com/politics/live/2022/sep/29/liz-truss-kwasi-kwarteng-mini-budget-sterling-crisis-economy-conservatives-uk-politics-live-updates>
 61. Budget Responsibility Bill: HL Bill 24 of 2024–25 - House of Lords Library, accessed April 24, 2026,
<https://lordslibrary.parliament.uk/research-briefings/ln-2024-0051/>
 62. Mini budget 2022 - CIPP, accessed April 24, 2026,
<https://www.cipp.org.uk/static/38ccda3a-f312-4756-8e40b2d6ca242530/Growth-Plan-Mini-budget-summary.pdf>
 63. Why was the September 2022 United Kingdom mini-budget so badly received, but not other similar budgets?, accessed April 24, 2026,
<https://economics.stackexchange.com/questions/57875/why-was-the-september-2022-united-kingdom-mini-budget-so-badly-received-but-not>
 64. Prime Minister criticises 'anti-growth coalition' in Tory conference speech - YouTube, accessed April 24, 2026, <https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=ptfY-KSd-NE>
 65. Liz Truss has a farcical plan: blame the 'anti-growth coalition' for 12 years of Tory

- failure | Gaby Hinsliff | The Guardian, accessed April 24, 2026,
<https://www.theguardian.com/commentisfree/2022/oct/06/liz-truss-anti-growth-coalition-authority-uk-economy>
66. Liz Truss rails against 'anti-growth coalition' including speech hecklers | The Independent, accessed April 24, 2026,
<https://www.independent.co.uk/news/uk/liz-truss-prime-minister-labour-nicola-s-turgeon-brexit-b2196069.html>
67. REGISTER OF LORDS' INTERESTS - London - UK Parliament, accessed April 24, 2026, <https://www.parliament.uk/globalassets/documents/publications-records/house-of-lords-publications/records-activities-and-membership/register-of-lords-interests/register190224.pdf>
68. Register of Interests - Members of the House of Lords - MPs and Lords - UK Parliament, accessed April 24, 2026,
<https://members.parliament.uk/members/lords/interests/register-of-lords-interests?ShowAmendments=True&page=22>
69. Boris Johnson paid more than £32000 an hour for speech in US - The Independent, accessed April 24, 2026,
<https://www.independent.co.uk/news/uk/politics/boris-johnson-hourly-rate-speech-b2228233.html>
70. How much did Boris Johnson earn from speaking engagements after stepping down as Prime Minister, and what other post-leadership activities did he engage in? - Quora, accessed April 24, 2026, <https://www.quora.com/How-much-did-Boris-Johnson-earn-from-speaking-engagements-after-stepping-down-as-Prime-Minister-and-what-other-post-leadership-activities-did-he-engage-in>
71. Boris Johnson Pockets £1m As Guest Speaker Since Being Ousted As PM - HuffPost UK, accessed April 24, 2026, https://www.huffingtonpost.co.uk/entry/boris-johnson-speaking-engagements-earnings_uk_6393ba22e4b019c6962245ac
72. Boris Johnson received £276130 plus expenses for US speech - The Guardian, accessed April 24, 2026,
<https://www.theguardian.com/politics/2022/nov/17/boris-johnson-received-276130-plus-expenses-for-us-speech>
73. Dark Money Lobby Group Denies Sponsoring Liz Truss 'PopCon' Platform Set Up by Former Director - Byline Times, accessed April 24, 2026, <https://bylinetimes.com/2024/01/25/disappearing-act-dark-money-lobby-group-denies-sponsoring-liz-truss-popcon-platform-set-up-by-former-director/>
74. 'Fighting the Enlightenment?': What Do Danny Kruger's New Conservatives Really Want?, accessed April 24, 2026, <https://bylinetimes.com/2024/02/22/fighting-the-enlightenment-what-do-danny-krugers-new-conservatives-really-want/>
75. Situating Popular Conservatives in the Party's tradition | LSE British Politics, accessed April 24, 2026,
<https://blogs.lse.ac.uk/politicsandpolicy/situating-popular-conservatives-in-the-p>

artys-tradition/

76. Can Liz Truss and CPAC Make England Great Again? | The Spectator, accessed April 24, 2026,
<https://spectator.com/article/can-liz-truss-and-cpac-make-england-great-again/?edition=us>
77. 'We need a bigger bazooka': Liz Truss takes aim at left 'deep state' at CPAC - The Guardian, accessed April 24, 2026,
<https://www.theguardian.com/us-news/2024/feb/22/liz-truss-cpac-republican>
78. Liz Truss paid thousands for speeches after resigning as prime minister | The National, accessed April 24, 2026,
<https://www.thenational.scot/news/23632054.liz-truss-paid-thousands-speeches-resigning-prime-minister/>
79. Changes to the Register of Members' Interests Elizabeth Truss - TheyWorkForYou, accessed April 24, 2026, <https://www.theyworkforyou.com/regmem/?p=24941>
80. Elizabeth Truss Financial Disclosures - Parallel Parliament, accessed April 24, 2026, <https://www.parallelparliament.co.uk/mp/elizabeth-truss/financial-disclosure>
81. New life peerages in 2023: Boris Johnson's resignation list - House of Lords Library, accessed April 24, 2026,
<https://lordslibrary.parliament.uk/new-life-peerages-in-2023-boris-johnsons-resignation-list/>
82. The row over Boris Johnson's resignation honours list highlights why it should be the last, accessed April 24, 2026, <https://electoral-reform.org.uk/the-row-over-this-resignation-honours-list-highlights-why-it-should-be-the-last/>