Dear Sir/Madam, Alisatir Finlay/Liz McLaughlin/Russel Group CEO,

I can't leave under false pretences and refute your claims of 'abuse via email'. You MUST, tomorrow 31 July, provide evidence to me and Accomodations Elms BT1 of this abuse or you must rescind your eviction and apologise for the defamation and putting my life at risk making it look like I'm a threat to others on campus.

I am writing to you under extreme duress to formally appeal the recent action taken against me, which I consider to be an unlawful and discriminatory act in direct breach of the Equality Act (Northern Ireland) 2010 and the Equal Status Act of Ireland. This action is a continuation of the university's shocking disregard for its duty of care, a failure which previously resulted in a violent assault against my person and a subsequent traumatic brain injury.

My academic record, including First-Class Honours from the University of Galway, speaks for itself. My studies there included high achievement in modules on Psychology, Sociology, and Research Literacies. This gave me a firm understanding of educational theory, social structures, and the rights of individuals within institutions. Furthermore, as an alumnus of Galway, I am well aware of the legacy of Professor Kevin Boyle and the principles enshrined in the university's Human Rights archive. It is therefore with a profound sense of institutional shame and personal trauma that I find QUB—the sister college to my own alma mater, both founded in 1845—not only violating these fundamental human rights principles but also gaslighting a student who is educated in them.

I have a long-documented medical history of an Anxiety Disorder, PTSD, and Social Phobia, with an onset date of September 2015. My condition is diagnosed as chronic and fluctuating, exacerbated by stress. Throughout my studies at the University of Galway, I was registered with the Disability Support Service (2017-2023) and received essential reasonable accommodations, including deadline leniency and exam support, which enabled me to achieve First-Class Honours. These are not privileges; they are legally mandated supports to ensure equal participation.

Your current actions are a direct continuation of a pattern of negligence. Last year, I disclosed to you my precarious housing situation and the risks to my safety. You refused me emergency accommodation. Subsequently, I was assaulted at my previous address—punched 18 times in the skull, resulting in a traumatic brain injury. As irrefutable evidence of the danger you left me in, I attach a formal PSNI Threat Message dated 22/09/2024, which confirms that "criminal elements may intend to cause serious harm to the resident of 56 Earls court Street, Belfast." Your failure to act on my disclosure placed my life at risk and directly led to severe physical and psychological trauma, compounding my existing PTSD. To now render me homeless, knowing I have nowhere else to go, is not only cruel but appears to be a deliberate attempt to endanger my life once more.

This is a flagrant violation of your own stated values. Your "Path to Sanctuary" initiative claims you are a "welcoming place of safety for all" and that you "offer sanctuary to people fleeing violence or persecution." Your actions towards me, a British and Irish national and an alumnus of your sister university who was fleeing a documented threat of violence, make a mockery of these commitments.

Your decision has immediate and catastrophic consequences. I have secured a place to study at University College London (UCL), another Russell Group institution, and have been offered accommodation at Max Rayne House with a contract starting on 25/08/2025. Your actions are intentionally sabotaging my ability to safely and stably prepare for this transition. This illegal eviction, if not immediately overturned, will affect my entire academic career.

Therefore, I demand the following:

- * Your immediate and unconditional authorisation for my safe return to my accommodation by tomorrow, 31st July 2025 and to continue staying in the internationally arranged accommodation as arranged and not to break our contract illegally in breach of the Equal Status Act, Equality Act, and Russell Group Whistleblower Protocols.
- * An apology for causing such distress needlessly.
- * Confirmation that you have advised other students and staff I am not a threat to others and this was your mistake otherwise my life is at risk.
- * A guarantee of safe and stable accommodation with informed accommodations to my Disability, as I had paid for and arranged for independently at Elms BT1 as a Dundalk IT to survive domestic violence against me in Galway and complete my deferred assignments and exam over the summer - allowing me to prepare for my transition to UCL. I now have to desensitise to new accommodation and have to handle the stress of being homeless? Constantly between now and then? Paying for accommodation at this day of the week when I won't be able to get back to Belfast tomorrow, when I might not get a refund until next Tuesday, when I can't book alternatives over the weekend without upfront payment... means I legally cannot leave until I am sure I will not die being left poor and homeless elsewhere.
- * A formal investigation into the university's repeated breaches of the Equality Act, and its duty of care in my case.

I have attached my CV, comprehensive medical evidence, PSNI Crime Numbers, the PSNI Threat Message, and my UCL accommodation offer. This documentation provides an undeniable record of my academic merit, my disability, the university's past failures, and the tangible future you are hindering in the name of the Russel Group.

I have had to find safety in Dublin as you have claimed to Queen's University Belfast that I am a threat to campus just like you did last September where my life has verifiably been under threat (attached) and I have had to stay in Dublin tonight and tomorrow. Leaving me with €30 to survive until next Wednesday's Disability Allowance - how will I eat? How will I move my belongings elsewhere? How will I survive when I can't find alternative accomodation this late in the summer on such short notice and without a guarantor? After you have damaged my reputation all throughout Belfast on a vindictive whim? This University nearly killed me once - it's not a good look to try again. I can't arrange equal accomodation at all. I can't arrange any accomodation at all as all are more costly, require a guarantor, payment upfront, will be closed on the weekend, and I have so many things to pack.

This accomodation over the summer as a DKIT student and public user of QUB Sport, a member of Alliance Party and volunteer at Belfast Turas has NOTHING to do with QUB admin and you have no legal precedent to evict me with prejudice.

You will also have to inform other students of Elms BT1 that I am not a threat to others as you have lied about me and that I in fact am not abusive to anyone - as I am a registered teacher on the Irish Teaching Council and you have now defamed me to students, any parents they tell and staff alike effecting my current status as a student and teacher and future status as a Professor of Education.

Failure to rectify this will leave me with no alternative but to further escalate this matter to the Equality Commission for Northern Ireland, NIPSO (the Northern Ireland Public Services Ombudsman), and to seek immediate legal counsel to protect my rights and my safety.

CCed are the Alliance and Fine Gael parties which I am a member of. And the Equality Commision and NIPSO who I have already communicated to about you. The Belfast Turas charity in the East Mission Belfast who will be wondering why I haven't returned there next week like I had arranged.

How will I receive the stem cell donor kit I ordered to QUB Elms BT1? (evidence attached)

How will I feel safe doing the August run for Northern Ireland Children's Hospice that I donated £200 on the assumption of safety and stability to work on my part time job and begin my DKIT irish-language AI project? (evidence attached)

I cannot leave nor be made leave my accomodation based on false accusations of abuse towards staff or students as that is defamatory, slanderous, and puts my life at risk.

This is in breach of law and it must be rescinded, by law.

I need it in writing tomorrow that you have rescinded evicting me on a false technicality, that I hurt nobody at Queen's campus nor Queen's Elms BT1 and you breached the contract illegally putting my life and reputation at risk - and then I can safely return.

Yours sincerely,

QUB's Claim 1: "Permanent removal from your programme of study at Queen's University."

This justification is fundamentally flawed. The letter itself acknowledges the student's primary status: "While we acknowledge that you applied to the Vacation Residence scheme as a student of Dundalk Institute of Technology (DKIT)..." The accommodation agreement was therefore predicated on being a DKIT student, not a QUB student. Any removal from a QUB-specific programme is irrelevant to the terms of the vacation residency contract. This internal contradiction within the university's own letter significantly undermines the primary reason given for the eviction.

QUB's Claim 2: "Persistent and abusive communications directed to and about University staff."

This is a serious allegation, but in the context of an immediate eviction, it is presented without evidence or due process. In any properly governed institution, such allegations would be subject to a formal disciplinary process. This would involve presenting the evidence of the alleged communications, giving the student the right to respond to the allegations, and providing a right of appeal against any decision. A Campus Experience, Ms. Liz McLaughlin, provides several justifications for the eviction. Each of these justifications is weak and susceptible to legal challenge.

QUB's Claim 1: "Permanent removal from your programme of study at Queen's University."

This justification is fundamentally flawed. The letter itself acknowledges the student's primary status: "While we acknowledge that you applied to the Vacation Residence scheme as a student of Dundalk Institute of Technology (DKIT)..." The accommodation agreement was therefore predicated on being a DKIT student, not a QUB student. Any removal from a QUB-specific programme is irrelevant to the terms of the vacation residency contract. This internal contradiction within the university's own letter significantly undermines the primary reason given for the eviction.

QUB's Claim 2: "Persistent and abusive communications directed to and about University staff."

QUB's Claim 3: "The University does not consider that it has any ongoing duty to provide housing or alternative accommodation in your case."

This statement is legally and morally questionable. By issuing an immediate eviction notice late in the day to a student they know has a registered disability, the university is knowingly and directly causing that student to become homeless. This action likely represents a serious breach of the university's duty of care to its residents, regardless of their student status. A court or any regulatory body would likely take a very dim view of a large, well-resourced public institution acting in such a high-handed manner toward a vulnerable individual, and then attempting to abdicate all responsibility for the foreseeable consequences of its actions. The letter, far from being a strong justification, serves as a self-incriminating document. It provides a clear roadmap for a legal challenge by highlighting its own internal contradictions, its disregard for due process, and its explicit and callous denial of a duty of care.

Section 3: The Whistleblowing Connection: Establishing Retaliatory Eviction

The objective of this section is to construct a in the accommodation to the whistleblowing process. The timing of the eviction—taking place immediately upon the conclusion of that process—creates a powerful and persuasive inference of retaliatory motive. It strongly suggests that the unsubstantiated claim of "abusive communications" is a pretext, a manufactured justification to punish the student for engaging in a protected activity. This shifts the entire narrative of the dispute. The university's own words transform the issue from a standard landlord-tenant problem into a case of institutional retaliation against a whistleblower.

3.2 Retaliatory Eviction as Unlawful Harassment

While "retaliatory eviction" is not a specific statutory term in Northern Ireland housing law in the way it is in some other jurisdictions , the actions taken by QUB fall squarely within the legal definition of harassment under the Protection from Eviction Act 1977.

As previously noted, harassment includes any act calculated to interfere with the peace and comfort of an occupier with the intent of causing
